

STATINTL

June 15, 1959

Office of the Director
Central Intelligence Agency
2430 E Street, N. W.
Washington, D. C.

Dear Sir:

There is enclosed a rough draft of a speech I would like to present to the Junior Women's Clubs of Charleston, West Virginia. The proposed speech would be one of a series of six major addresses given to the club during their Fall and Winter meetings. The Association of Junior Women's Clubs of Charleston is a large and influential organization here with activities directed principally to civic and public affairs.

I have been practicing law in Charleston for two years and have made numerous public addresses, having been actively engaged in politics as well as presenting such addresses as to Parent Teacher Associations on the laws of West Virginia pertaining to schools; speeches on legislative functions (having been a member of the drafting committee of the West Virginia Legislature), to Church groups on Court functions, etc.

Because of my interest in foreign affairs and the almost complete absence in the area of any knowledgeable individuals, I have from time to time been requested to present talks on the dangers of Communism, but have always declined. In the instance at hand, however, it is felt that such a talk would reach a group where it could have real usefulness, particularly because there is such a void on these matters in the Charleston area (encompassing an area of over 300,000 population or about one-seventh of the State). This is a vital area for favorable public relations for our government as well as to perform a public service for people of the area. It might be anticipated, that if such an address is given there will be requests from other organizations.

Should the enclosed rough draft of proposed speech be unacceptable security wise and there are changes you care to take the time to make or in the alternative if you have "canned" addresses which may be followed as a guide for such purposes, it would be appreciated if you could assist me in this regard.

Hoping to hear from you in the near future, I am

Very truly yours,

JMS Approved For Release 2000/04/14 : CIA-RDP75-00001R000400350005-1

cc: With enclosure to Office of Security